CHARACTER PROFILE:

Rich is a prophet, by nature. He is particular. He's also OCD, in nature ... he wants things done a certain way. Remember, things are 'black and white' for him – period! There are no 'grey areas'. And whatever you do, don't come at him with this 'fairness' thing ... you know, everybody should have their freedoms and we should take all of our stuff down if it offends them. Don't even go there with Rich! Being a prophet to the body of Christ, this is a "no mans land" area – don't go there!

Rich is all about covenant relationships. He takes it all the way. That means you don't gossip, or talk behind my back. He's also big on character. He "is" a cowboy, and follows cowboy traditions. You know, the gentleman stuff ... tip your hat to a lady, say "yes ma'am" and "no ma'am", 'n such. He is also all about character, integrity, and doing it with "honor". He respects people for their positions, and has the heart of a father when it comes to pasturing and people. This often "softens" his prophet side.

We work for God, with His purposes and His vision in-mind, and His Word is the final authority in our lives. So with that being said, he will stand before you as a servant of the Lord, as one of His sons, and as your brother in Christ.

TALENTS & SKILLS:

Rich is very 'technical'. He understand electronics, basic physics, mechanics, and can converse with folks easily in these area. He has worked as a manager, a leader, a computer guy, network admin, pc support, etc.

He also understand electronics, sounds systems, radio transmitters, antenna systems, lighting systems, video systems, and such.

He is a good singer! He sings in a wide range but is 'at home' in the lower-to-mid ranges of the vocal spectrum. He plays the guitar, with a beginner-to-moderate skill level. He owns a 12-string Yamaha, and a 6-string Epiphone, both acoustic guitars. He has played the piano, with a basic skill level. He understands music, but functions in the areas of music, mostly by ear. He excels in harmony and in discerning different voices, instruments, etc. in a song, and can quickly follow and jump right in.

Rich is comfortable on the stage. He is a gifted speaker, teacher, and preacher, and is "right-at-home" when preaching. When singing, his confidence (like with many singers) is less than with his preaching, but he does well once he's comfortable.

He was raised a cowboy, working on a ranch with cattle, a few horses, farm equipment, chickens, etc. and is well-qualified to run a ranch. He's an avid camper, and understands being in the wilderness, in the country, and in providing for and defending himself. He's an excellent marksman with a rifle, and not bad at all with a pistol. He can "twirl" western-styled six-guns just like in the movies.

CLOTHING TASTES: (see SIZES section for clothing sizes)

Rich is a cowboy. Keep that in mind when buying clothing. He loves cowboy boots, heavily starched Wrangler Pro-Rodeo bluejeans (see sizes section), t-shirts with radical Christian slogans on them, and cowboy hats. His "style" of cowboy hat is usually the "bull rider" (shape of the brim), and he likes the George Strait line of straw hats.

He loves leather! A fine leather handbag, chaps, nicely done leather cowboy belts, leather vests (brown, 3 button style), western jackets (if fringed, no too much) and the famous Marlboro coat. (he lost his last one in a move) He also likes "dusters" and "slickers". Anything "cowboy", you pretty much can't go wrong! But make it authentic – not "Hollywood". For example, he is NOT one to dress in "Porter Wagner style" with the fancy shirts, studs and flashy gems and glitter all over – that just won't do! He has always wanted a nice set of leather saddlebags. Not the cheap modern looking ones, but ones similar to the Pony Express Riders of the ole Western days. He also likes leather cell phone cases. Make certain, if there is to be any embroidering, that it is Christian and represents "faith", Jesus, etc.

On shirts, he prefers a larger collar. (big neck) Because of his larger upper body area, he needs a "tailored" shirt, or one with a larger upper-body area and neck size. These usually fall in the 17-17½ or Extra Large sizes. He prefers shirts that fit much like the George Strait style of tailoring. Studs just get smashed in the dry cleaners, so he's pretty much done with those! Collar-less shirts, in the old "frontier" style are nice. He prefers these types of collars because he can wear these with a suite, without having to wear a tie. But he does like collars ... sharp, tall collars. No short ones, or ones without a button or "stays" to keep them up. On the other hand, nothing so large like the one's that Elvis wore either!

On suits, he likes western suits. He also likes the double-breasted suits, as these look good with his body frame. Keep it black, with suits, and brown with western suits, as he's not a plaid or greys kind of guy when it comes to suits and pants. Keep in mind that he's probably going to be wearing either brown or black boots with the suit pants. Rarely will you see him in "loafers", as he's not the "loafing" type.

On suit coats, he prefers the open breasted (double-breasted) jacket, much because he prefers NOT to wear a tie, but rather a collar-less shirt, that looks much like one a priest would wear, only the neckband is smaller (and the white neck band is not white). He loves western "double string" ties, and bolos.

He loves tuxedos! He always says, "You can always 'over dress', but NEVER, EVER under-dress". Tux's are a fine example. You can wear one of these to a formal party, where everyone else is wearing a suit. Sure, you stand out, but not because somebody's looking "down" at you! He likes to have a matching hat with his suit or tux. He will go without, but he 'prefers' the hat with the suit. The rest that goes with the tux is all good! After all, tux's came from the old West days!

Belts are generally preferred western, with nicely done leather design. Conchos with Texas stars or a cross are good! These belts are expensive, when done right. He will wear dress belts, when he has to wear dress pants or dockers.

When it comes to footwear, Rich will wear cowboy boots (first and foremost), in traditional J6 toe or similar style. He will not wear "square-toes", "dingo" boots, or boots that lace up or are "cut-off" at the ankles! He prefers the boots to "look cowboy". This includes the Justin roper "work boots" style that has become so popular. He just doesn't like 'em ... if they're cowboy boots, they're cowboy boots. They don't lace up, they're not "cut off" at the ankles, and they do NOT have rounded or square toes! Exotic hides are good, as long as they're "cowboy", with the proper toe shape. He also does not like the "super-sharp" toe, you know the ones that look like they've been in a pencil sharpener! Yeah, those.

In tennis shoes, Rich prefers New Balance, Nike, or some similar shoe design, in white. DO NOT bring him the "Keds" looking shoes, especially with the hi-tops! He'll only wear those when he's dressing up as a clown. Running shoes are good, too!

In sandals, Rich almost exclusively prefers "Tivas" for wet-weather activities, including swimming, kayaking, etc. These are hard to beat!
